

Creating and appreciating a garden is a dynamic, creative process that benefits from inspiration. Gardeners in the Pacific Northwest are fortunate to have access to many garden styles and a wide variety of plant combinations at gardens that are open to the public – all within range of a day trip from Skagit Valley.

---

Our resident Anna's and migrating Rufous hummingbirds are an important part of our ecosystem helping control insects are great pollinators.

---

Join us for this year's Open House at the Discovery Garden, the Salal Native Plant Garden, and the NW Fruit Garden

---

Plants, education, food, music. Kick off your gardening season at the 30th Annual Skagit Master Gardener Plant Fair – Saturday, May 11 – 10 a.m. – 2 p.m.

---

Explore the benefits of using keystone plants to create a wildlife-friendly ecosystem in your own garden.

---

Learn about pollinators and open your eyes to the beauty and intricate connectivity of nature. As gardeners, we can make choices that will enhance or inhibit pollinators.